Special Thanks

Elle would like to thank Mrs. Elaine Moss for always pushing her and for making her laugh even on the bad days, and Holly Huntley for supporting Elle in everything and always being ready to help. Thank you to Coaches Augustine, Krug, and Pasterski for pushing Elle as a runner and supporting her musical goals. Thanks also to Elissa Ribbens for being a great accompanist and a brilliant musician, and to Craig Sampo Jr., Billy Myers, and Dr. John Salerno for working with and helping Elle incorporate jazz in this recital.

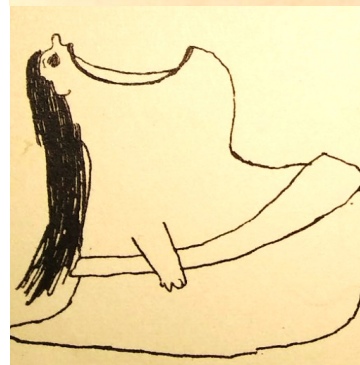

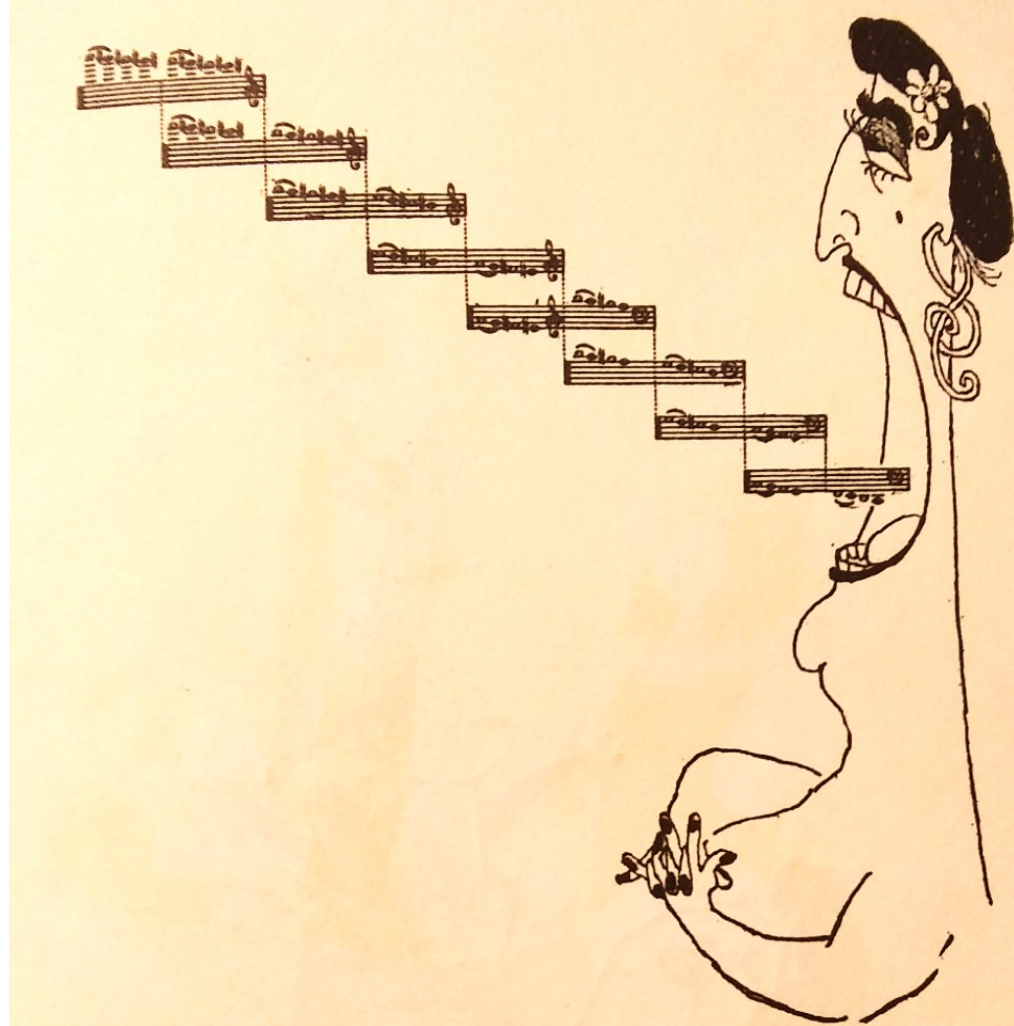

Love and gratitude to her older sisters for loving her unconditionally and inspiring Elle, to her younger sister for being her biggest fan and for filling the world with joy and laughter, and to all her sisters for supporting her from far away. Elle is thankful for her musical roommates Erin, Lauren, Kiera, and John, all of whom support her endlessly not just as a musician and future educator, but as a person and a sister.

Elle thanks her mother and father for supporting Elle in every way imaginable this year – driving up to see her whenever she called, making her food, taking her care of her when she was ill, trekking out to her meets, and so much more. Thanks also to Dr. Michael Rosewall for being the best voice teacher any soprano (or any person) could ask for, for always listening to Elle, and for pushing her as a musician and a person to places she never believed she could go.

Most of all, Elle would like to thank the strong young womxn in her life who give her a place to belong: the SNC women's cross country team and the Knightingales. The cross-country team is a second family to Elle and their love has gotten her through the season and the semester. The Knightingales have helped give Elle a voice, they are the sisterhood that sings, and their music gives voices to all those that cannot speak alone.
